

Gallery sleepover: Bird sculptures to make you drowsy in Marco Giordano's new show

14 Feb 2020

Gallery assistant Karlie Wu admires the work of Marco Giordano in his To Disturb Somnolent Birds exhibition at The Modern Institute in Glasgow.

The show focuses on the Turin-born artist's interest in hypnagogia – “the lucid phenomena experienced within the brief transitional state between wakefulness and sleep”. It features a series of bird-like sculptures pulsating with fluctuating light, reminiscent of night lights.
